RACISM, ANTIRACISM, AND YOU

A REMIX of the National Book Award–winning STAMPED FROM THE BEGINNING

READING ACROSS RHODE ISLAND 2021

Rhode Island Center for the Book
DEAR READERS,

The Rhode Island Center for the Book’s mission to connect Rhode Islanders through a one-book-one-state reading program seems more vital in 2021 than ever before. It is through our shared experiences that we build our state community, and during this time of social distancing this type of non-profit community programming helps us stay connected as we read a common text and enter into conversations with each other about the topics that matter to us.

Stamped: Racism, Antiracism and You by Ibram X. Kendi and Jason Reynolds was released to the world the very week that our schools closed due to the rising numbers of the Covid-19 pandemic. As a teacher, I was not only adjusting to a virtual landscape but doing so at a time of great social unrest in our country. And my students wanted to talk about it. Fate seemed to have landed this book in my lap as I tried to help my students understand what was happening and what they wanted to do about it. Through these months I was also reading dozens of books as our committee was considering which would be the next Reading Across Rhode Island selection. Among many great contenders, Stamped rose to the top as a gift to us all to support our conversations and activism.

Stamped promises not to be a history book, while it offers the historical context to bring the past to the present to help us understand and take action steps to end racism. Reynolds’ conversational narration invites us into the text, welcomes us to consider the complexities of past events, and asks us to be active participants in the fight for equity and justice.

Unlike in previous years when we’ve offered an Educator’s Guide, we are fortunate that an excellent, free one already exists. So instead, this year we are offering a Programming Guide for you to consider joining us for a series of events related to the book, and a Resource Directory including a collection of links for all readers, including educators, librarians, parents, book clubs and community members.

In his introduction to the book, Kendi writes, “To know the past is to know the present. To know the present is to know yourself.” My hope for this year’s Reading Across Rhode Island experience is that we will bring ourselves to this book, look for ourselves within its pages, and then enter into conversations with each other about how we can work together across our generations to get to know each other, what we care about, and how we can work together toward a more equitable future for all who live in Rhode Island. I look forward to meeting you through our programming events and am eager to hear from you about your reflections on the book and how you’re experiencing it with your family, students, colleagues and communities. Thank you for participating in Reading Across Rhode Island.

STAMPED: CLASSROOM GUIDE

1. Read the dedication page. To whom do Jason Reynolds (JR) and Ibram X. Kendi (IXK) dedicate this book? What does that suggest about their purpose in writing this book? CCRA.R.1; CCRA.R.5

2. Examine the Table of Contents. How is the book organized? CCRA.R.5

3. After reading the introduction, explain why Ibram X. Kendi wrote this book. What does he hope to accomplish? CCRA.R.1; CCRA.R.2; CCRA.R.6

4. The introduction presents and defines key terms that will be used throughout the book. Provide a definition for each and add examples and explanations as you encounter these terms in later chapters: racist, antiracist, segregationist, assimilationist. (CCRA.R.1; CCRA.R.2; CCRA.R.3; CCRA.R.4

5. On pages 2-3, Reynolds describes this book not as a “history” book but as a “present” book. What does he mean? CCRA.R.1; CCRA.R.4

6. Reynolds calls Gomes Eanes de Zurara the world’s first racist in Chapter 1. Why, and how does he justify this distinction? Is his argument convincing to you? CCRA.R.1; CCRA.R.4; CCRA.R.8

7. In Chapter 2 Reynolds explores two theories that he believes provide the basis for racism in America. Define each theory briefly and show how the Puritans and the Planters used these theories to create the foundation for racism in America. CCRA.R.1; CCRA.R.2; CCRA.R.3

8. The Mennonites are presented as early examples of antiracists (pg. 23-24). What was their response to slavery? Extend your understanding of the Mennonites by exploring their current policies and positions about racial justice. How do their spiritual beliefs inform their views on race in America, both historically and currently? CCRA.R.1; CCRA.R.3; CCRA.W.7; CCRA.W.9

9. On page 26-27 Reynolds describes the creation of “White privilege.”

   1. In early America, what specific privileges were granted exclusively to White people and what was the purpose of establishing these laws? CCRA.R.1

   2. Although we no longer have laws that give White people rights based explicitly on their race, are there assumptions or cultural norms that favor White people and provide them with some advantages over people of color? Explain your response.
3. Read Peggy McIntosh’s 1989 essay “White Privilege: Unpacking the Invisible Knapsack” in which she outlines the everyday ways that being White affects her life. Compare examples from the book, as well as your own life experiences, to the examples McIntosh presents. CCRA.R.1; CCRA.R.9

10. What was the role of religion in perpetuating racism in early America? What was the role of economics? (Chapter 4) How does the information in this chapter connect to theories of race Reynolds presents in Chapter 2? CCRA.R.1; CCRA.R.2; CCRA.R.3

11. Reynolds introduces Phillis Wheatley on pages 44-45. Research her life and create a timeline of important events. Then read and analyze one of her poems. CCRA.R.2; CCRA.R.3; CCRA.R.4; CCRA.R.10; CCRA.W.7; CCRA.W.9

12. On page 42-43 Reynolds examines the contradictions of Thomas Jefferson, a slave owner who grappled with antiracist thought. List some of these contradictions. How should we evaluate the legacy of people who lived in different times and cultures? CCRA.R.1

13. Throughout this book, Reynolds refers to everyday words and phrases that equate darkness with evil, such as “blackmail,” “blacklist,” “black sheep,” “to see the light.” How does the language we use shape and/or reflect our thinking? CCRA.R.4

14. Examine the phrasing and spacing on page 66. What rhetorical devices does Reynolds use in this passage and what effect does he create with these choices? CCRA.R.4; CCRA.R.5

15. In Chapter 15, Reynolds compares the ideas and approaches to racial inequality of W.E.B. DuBois and Booker T. Washington. Summarize the differing views of each man and explain what they had in common. CCRA.R.1; CCRA.R.3

16. Movies can be a window into the cultural attitudes and understandings of a society. Reynolds discusses how films such as Tarzan (pp. 132-133), Planet of the Apes (pg. 186), and Rocky (pg. 199) reflected White anxiety about changing social norms. Select a contemporary movie and analyze what it might reflect about our contemporary society. CCRA.R.6; CCRA.R.7

17. Conduct extended research into the Great Migration (pg. 137), where more than 6 million southern Blacks moved to urban centers in the North and the Midwest. What were the factors that caused the migration? Where did the southern Blacks go and what did they experience in their new locations? What short and long-term effects did the migration have on American
18. Pick one artist, musician, or author from the Harlem Renaissance. Create a portfolio that provides biographical details about the artist and showcase their work. CCRA.R.7; CCRA.R.10; CCRA.W.7

20. Throughout this book Reynolds gives examples of prominent Black people who were unjustly imprisoned, like the boxer Jack Johnson (132) or the political leader Marcus Garvey (145). Investigate how people have used the criminal justice system to undermine Black people who were seen as becoming too powerful. CCRA.R.3; CCRA.7

21. W.E.B. DuBois published an article in 1934 advocating for what Reynolds describes as “Black safe spaces” (152). Today, many college campuses are grappling with the complexities of creating safe spaces for people of color. Conduct research to explore the issues surrounding these spaces and write an argumentative essay addressing one issue. CCRA.R.10; CCRA.W.1; CCRA.W.7

22. In Chapter 20, Reynolds shows how the racial justice movement began to develop a lot of momentum after WWII. What were some of the most important court cases, laws, events, and people that helped to transform America during this time? CCRA.R.1; CCRA.R.2

23. Malcolm X and Martin Luther King were both important Black leaders, but they had different ideas about the best ways to achieve racial justice. Compare King to Malcolm X. Which approach do you think would be most effective, and why? (pp. 162-165) CCRA.R.1; CCRA.R.3

24. What is Reynolds’s attitude toward the Civil Rights Act passed by Lyndon B. Johnson in 1964, and why does he feel this way? (pp. 172-174) Do you agree with him? CCRA.R.1; CCRA.R.6; CCRA.R.8

25. Stokey Carmichael popularized the phrase “Black Power.” Explain what this slogan means to antiracists as well as to White racists, according to Reynolds. (pg. 181) CCRA.R.1; CCRA.R.3

26. Extend your understanding of how Black women contributed to the antiracist movement by examining the lives and work of some of the Black women that Reynolds recognizes as important contributors: Audre Lorde, Ntozake Shang, Alice Walker, Michelle Wallace, Angela Davis. CCRA.R.3; CCRA.R.10; CCRA.W.7; CCRA.W.9
27. Chapter 25 addresses the role of Hip Hop music and Black-produced films in articulating racial anger. Choose a song or film from the list on pp. 211-213 and 215-216 and determine the main message the artist wanted to convey. CCRA.R.1; CCRA.R.2; CCRA.R.4; CCRA.R.5; CCRA.R.7; CCRA.W.9

28. Rap music (pp. 216) has been the target of numerous critics who object to the lyrics and depictions of Black urban life. Research the arguments against rap music, as well as the arguments of those who defend it. Then write a position paper showing your own opinion. CCRA.R.1; CCRA.R.2; CCRA.R.8; CCRA.W.1; CCRA.W.7

29. On page 224 Reynolds reports on the 1997 Million Women’s March, where Black women argued that the best way to stop racism was to become “color-blind” and stop focusing on race. Why does Reynolds disagree with this, and what examples does he provide to show that “color-blind” policies actually enable racism? CCRA.R.1; CCRA.R.6

The #1 New York Times bestselling, “must-read” (San Francisco Chronicle), “amazingly timely and stunningly accessible” (Jacqueline Woodson) exploration of race and racism from award-winning, beloved authors Jason Reynolds and Ibram X. Kendi.

This is NOT a history book.

This is a book about the here and now.

A book to help us better understand why we are where we are.

A book about race.

The construct of race has always been used to gain and keep power, to create dynamics that separate and silence. This remarkable reimagining of Dr. Ibram X. Kendi’s National Book Award-winning Stamped from the Beginning reveals the history of racist ideas in America, and inspires hope for an antiracist future. It takes you on a race journey from then to now, shows you why we feel how we feel, and why the poison of racism lingers. It also proves that while racist ideas have always been easy to fabricate and distribute, they can also be discredited.

Through a gripping, fast-paced, and energizing narrative written by beloved award-winner Jason Reynolds, this book shines a light on the many insidious forms of racist ideas—and on ways readers can identify and stamp out racist thoughts in their daily lives.
